Preface

Education is the most important means of development of any nation or society. Any nation can progress only when all the citizens of that nation get the best opportunities for development and are able to take advantage of those opportunities. Humans are considered to be the most unique, thoughtful and active creatures on earth. Education is that process of human development, which develops a person in all aspects and takes him to the highest peak of success. Education is a lifelong process, which starts from birth and continues till death. A man always keeps learning throughout his life.

Education develops the physical, mental, social, moral, character, emotional and spiritual powers of a person and makes him capable of creating his own distinct identity in the world. In fact, education is a medium of propagation of knowledge and its purpose is to convey all the values of life from one generation to the other and to prepare the future generation to face the challenges to come. Teachers play a pivotal role in the holistic development of individuals. In today's society, it is increasingly rare to find educators who serve with unwavering dedication and uphold the highest standards of education. Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta from Banda, U.P. stands out as one such exemplary teacher. Thus, I have chosen to research his significant contributions to the field of education.

The title of the presented research work is, "Educational and Literary Contribution of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta 'Mewadev'". This dissertation has been divided into five chapters.

The first chapter is 'Introduction'. Under which, problems of the current education system, emergence of the problem, objectives of the study, research method, importance and significance of the study have been described.

In the second chapter, a survey of literature related to the study has been done, under which a review and conclusion of certain research studies related to the study has been presented.

The third chapter is related to the biography and works of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta 'Mewadev'. Under which, various aspects of his childhood, family tradition, study journey, domestic life, teaching journey, contribution in the field of education and literature and awards have been discussed in detail.

The fourth chapter mentions the literary creation of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta 'Mewadev'. In which various poetic collection and editorial works written by him are described.

The fifth chapter presents the conclusions, educational implications, suggestions of the study and suggestions for further research.

Every research work is objective and this objective can be meaningful only when the results of the research work are implemented properly. The presented research work is an effort in this direction. This research will definitely prove to be helpful in highlighting the contribution of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta 'Mewadev' in the field of education.

INTRODUCTION

1.1 EDUCATION: THE PROCESS OF DEVELOPMENT

Education is a process of acquiring knowledge, technical proficiency, proper conduct, knowledge, etc. Thus, it focuses on skills, trades or professions, and mental development. Education is the effort of one generation to transfer its knowledge to the next generation. In this view, education works as an institution, which plays an important role in connecting the individual with the society and maintains the continuity of the culture of the society. The child learns the basic rules, systems, norms, and values of society through education. A child is able to connect with society when he is oriented towards the history of that particular society. Education is a process that develops a person's inherent potential and personality. This process socializes him to play the role of an adult in the society and provides the skills and necessary knowledge to the individual to become a valuable member of society and a responsible citizen. The word education is formed by adding the suffix 'अ' to the root word शिक्ष् of Sanskrit language. शिक्ष् means learning and teaching. Therefore, the word 'education' means the act of learning and teaching. Education in the broadest sense is a purposeful social process that always goes on in a society, through which man's innate powers are developed, his knowledge and skills are increased and his behavior is changed, and thus he is made a civilized, cultured, and capable citizen. Man acquires and makes new experiences every moment, which affects his day-to-day behavior. His teaching and learning take place informally through various groups, festivals, newspapers, radio, television, etc. This learning and teaching come in a broad and detailed form of education. In the narrow sense, education is a purposeful social process that runs in a planned manner in a society at a certain time and in certain places (school, college) through which the student learns to pass the related examinations by studying the funded curriculum.

Education plays a pivotal role in shaping individuals and societies, serving as a cornerstone for personal, economic, and social development. It is the primary means through which people acquire the knowledge, skills, and critical thinking abilities necessary to navigate and succeed in a complex world. On a personal level, education fosters intellectual curiosity, enhances problem-solving abilities, and promotes emotional and social growth by exposing individuals to diverse viewpoints and experiences. Economically, it opens doors to better job opportunities and higher income potential, providing individuals with the tools to adapt to an ever-evolving job market and contribute meaningfully to economic progress. Moreover, education has profound social benefits; it encourages civic engagement, community involvement, and the development of empathy and understanding, which are crucial for reducing social inequalities and fostering harmonious societies. It also positively impacts health outcomes, as educated individuals are more likely to make informed decisions about their well-being and lead healthier lives. Beyond individual benefits, education drives innovation and progress by nurturing creativity and advancing scientific and technological discoveries that address global challenges. Ultimately, education empowers people by equipping them with the knowledge and skills to advocate for their rights, improve their circumstances, and contribute to the collective advancement of society, making it an essential element for a thriving and equitable world.

1.2 PROBLEMS OF CURRENT EDUCATION SYSTEM

1.2.1 Commercialization of education

The Government of India did not constitute many commissions regarding the commercialization of secondary education. But acted on his advice. But still, the situation did not improve much. Regarding this, the Kothari Commission 1964 has said – Despite repeated advice, this is an unfortunate thing. That vocational education at the school level is considered a poor-quality education the final election is held by parents and students. Commercialization of education means in general terms.

Training in any professional means teaching a business to the student so that he can earn his living easily. Along with education, arrangements should also be made for those courses which will make the students skilled in any profession along with education.

1.2.2 Politicization of Education

Most people are surprised. Why is it necessary to increase political awareness in schools? Do you find yourself in such a scenario? Where there is a debacle regarding the relationship between politics and education. Don't hesitate to use Barack Obama as a perfect example. The former US President is considered to be one of the greatest leaders of the modern era and his exemplary leadership style is one of the most brilliant phenomena that many want to learn from. Therefore, how he got the most enviable leadership position in the United States should suffice as the best example to refute the need to integrate more sessions that bring together politics and education. The primary role of education is to educate by improving a student's reading, comprehension and understanding. The idea of a world ruled by uneducated leaders is baseless. This doesn't seem plausible, does it? That is why it is important to keep this in mind. Being book smart doesn't indicate much about effective leadership, but it helps as one of many events that is essential to make a great leader. Education broadens one's thinking far more.

Political Science and Law are enough as the best courses. Who cleverly connects the bond between politics and education. The inclusion of politics in educational institutions either through effective leadership systems or through courses helps in shaping future leaders. It also educates the public as to how the administrative processes work. Every journey starts with a step. In such cases, having political events in schools helps the students to prepare for their future careers. It must be decided that politics happens not only at the state and national level. But it also happens in the corporate world. Students exposed to such an environment stand a better chance of becoming policy advisors as well as enthusiastic researchers for both government and corporate agencies. Therefore, politics and education show the value of their symbiotic relationship as they both redefine each other.

Politics and education are two such areas. Which rely on similar topics of learning. The fact of the matter is, every teacher was once a student. Every leader was once a trainee leader. However, one thing remains constant. Knowledge is paramount. These incidents should be the necessary examples to illustrate this. There will always be a symbiotic bond between politics and education.

1.2.3 Negative Impact of western culture on education

The present education system is in decline. Not only students but also parents and teachers are responsible for this. In which teachers gave their views on the current education system. The ancient Guru-Shishya tradition was our native education system in which students were bound by discipline and respect for the Guru. Used to get education. But now the situation is not like this. Education has become commercialized. The reason for this is that the current education system is in decline. Even parents do not pay attention to this. Parents also send us to teachers. However, they do not try to understand that the present education system is in decline. Not only the students but also the parents and teachers are responsible for this. The breakdown of the ancient Guru-disciple tradition has led to the present deterioration of education. The Western education system has attacked our culture. All of us, including diplomats, will have to think deeply about this and seriously make changes in the education system. At present, there has been a decline in teacher-student relations. This has come to the level of a formality. The feeling of giving respect among students has decreased. Not only the students are guilty of this, but teachers are also responsible to a great extent. It is being seen that in many places' teachers take the wrong advantage of this honour. In the past, the Guru-disciple relationship was selfless but currently, it has become selfish. Teachers have crossed all limits of earning money. Due to which this erosion is being seen. The time has come for parents, teachers and students to think. Secondly, the Western education system is also responsible for this degradation. To re-establish it, some kind of educational arrangement will have to be made. The breakdown of the ancient Guru-disciple tradition has led to the present deterioration of education. There are many reasons for the decline in the current education system. The decline of the government education system led to the rise of private coaching classes and private schools. Government schools neither have strong infrastructure. Nor are there qualified teachers which has led to the commercialization of education which is now at its peak. In this parallel education system, earning money has become the main objective.

1.2.4 Negligence of Education

Education is the backbone of the development of any state. Primary education is like the foundation of a building. If the foundation itself has become weak then the hope of a strong building becomes meaningless. Unfortunately, this is what is happening in all government schools. There is a lack of infrastructure and teachers in schools. One teacher is handling five classes each. Due to such a situation, parents avoid enrolling their children in government schools and give preference to private schools. Due to the pathetic condition of government schools, private schools have opened in every street. Many private schools have made education a business and are exploiting the parents to the fullest. Talking about the government school, there has been no teacher here for four years. Such news is shocking and also puts a question mark on the functioning of top officials of the government and the education department. It is even more surprising if this is the situation in Punjab, which is counted among the prosperous states of the country. After all, how much time does the government need to make arrangements for teachers in schools? Is the government so helpless that it cannot even appoint a teacher to the school in four years? There is a teacher in the village school so she has been to school for three years. Here, an NRI has arranged for two teachers to teach the children by paying salaries at his level. In such a situation, the future of the children studying there will certainly be affected. About five years ago, the Central Government enacted the Right to Education Act. Its objective was that every child should get an education because it is his right. But it is not enough just by making the law, the governments will have to see whether the work is being done as per the law or not. Teachers should be dealt with strictly, because neglecting education is like playing with the future of the country.

1.2.5 Negligence of Indian Culture

Indian culture is very unique. All its principles are completely scientific. And all principles have only one objective. To do welfare of human beings. Values and culture have great importance in human life. The secret to a family's success and prosperity is to have well-rounded children. Therefore, every parent must make their children moral and protect them from bad values , and sow the seeds of ideals and values in them right from childhood but today Indian culture and traditions seem to be disappearing. Today the tendency of violence and adultery is increasing among children. Why after all? Today the youth is moving away from hard work and patience. The virtuous nature is being suppressed in the society. We are moving towards Western culture. Where the whole world is adopting our Indian culture and traditions. And we are forgetting our culture and adopting their culture. If this is not our foolishness then what is it? Today we have started disregarding our Indian culture. Many ill effects are emerging in society due to neglect of values and blind imitation of a Western lifestyle. For example, many diseases have arisen due to changes in the dietary system, many mental ills have arisen due to changes in the education system and many social ills have arisen due to Western lifestyle.

1.2.6 Lack of Qualified Teachers

The Indian education system is not bad. But the problem is the lack of qualified teachers. Good teachers do not come into the field of teaching without passion for teaching or financial reasons. Unfortunately, teachers in our country, especially those working in the government school system, are seen as a problem of administration. The focus is on bringing teachers into the classroom rather than developing them. A study conducted by the National Council of Educational Research and Training (NCERT) found that Teachers' feedback is not given any importance in designing the training and local issues are not given any importance.

1.3 EMERGENCE OF THE PROBLEM

Education is a lifelong process in human life. The cooperation of the citizens of any country is very essential in the development and social upliftment of that country. Therefore, education is a social process. In ancient times, education was full of religion, culture and morality. As we moved towards the era of modernity and science. Religion, culture and morality started disappearing from the education system. With the advent of the scientific age, many changes took place in the field of education, education became commercialized and politicized. But unless education introduces the values, ideals and beliefs of life, it cannot be called education.

In modern times, there is a lack of qualified teachers. Where there is a predominance of unqualified teachers. In which the work done by the teachers should be publicized. The works written by them should be implemented in the curriculum. In which the researcher decided to do short research on the educational contribution of Dr. Brajesh Gupta, a capable teacher, poet and writer of the Banda district.

1.4 STATEMENT OF THE PROBLEM

The study is entitled as, “EDUCATIONAL AND LITERARY CONTRIBUTION OF Dr. BRAJESH KUMAR GUPTA ‘MEWADEV’ “

1.5 OBJECTIVES OF THE STUDY

The objectives of the presented mini-research are as follows—

- To study the personality and work of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta ‘Mevadev’.
- To study the literary creation of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta ‘Mevadev’.
- To study the educational ideas of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta ‘Mevadev’.
- To identify the educational implications of the study.

1.6 METHOD OF THE STUDY

In any research work, research study methodology is a way to conduct the research process efficiently for meaningful fact-finding about a particular subject. Humans have used many methods to solve problems which are used depending on the nature of the problem. Based on the objective and nature of the presented short research study and considering the problem of the study, the descriptive study method and case study method have been selected for research work.

1.6.1 Descriptive study method

Descriptive research has the most importance in the field of education and psychology research and it has come into practice widely. According to John W. Best, "Descriptive research describes and analyses what is happening. Situations or relationships that actually exist, practices that are ongoing, beliefs, ideas or attitudes that are being observed, processes that are going on, it is related to the experiences that are being gained or the new directions that are being developed."

In fact, before moving forward in solving any problem, a person must be familiar with the subject in which he is working. Therefore, like other sciences, In the beginning of educational research, special attention was paid to clarifying the details of any incident or topic. Before solving the problems related to students, schools, administration, curriculum, or teaching of any subject, a question arises in the mind of the researcher what is the current situation? What is the current status of this topic? The basic objective is to gain knowledge about current conditions, actions, attitudes and situations. However, a descriptive researcher is not concerned only with collecting facts, rather a skilled researcher aims to find and predict relationships between different variables.

1.6.2 Case Study Method

Under this, the researcher makes an in-depth study of any social unit - an individual, family, group, social institution or community. He collects data regarding past events or experiences, present situations and environment that affect his personality. of these elements. After analysing the relationships, he portrays the situation of that unit. In the case study method, an in-depth study of an individual, group, organization and community is done.

The case study method has been used in the fields of psychology, sociology, and education since the beginning. The case study method in social research was first used by Frederick Le Play in 1840 in the study of family budgets.

In the same sense, P V Young has defined the case study method as follows, "Case study method is a method by which the biography of a social unit can be investigated and analysed." This study is a marvel of collection, organization, analysis and presentation of data to know the social reality. The case study method is also addressed as a 'single study method' or 'study method of individual'.

1.7 SIGNIFICANCE AND IMPORTANCE OF THE STUDY

In the present study, the educational contribution of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta 'Mevadev' has been studied. He is renowned as an ideal teacher of English as well as a writer. And he is benefiting the general public through his writings. Certainly, this short research will be inspiring for teachers, especially the teachers of the English language, they will also be able to spread the fragrance of writing in their lives, apart from this, students and the general public will also be able to contribute towards the upliftment of English language and culture by getting inspiration from his personality and work.

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

2.1 INTRODUCTION

In the process of research, studying the related literature is a scientific and important step of this undertaking. Because a person creates new knowledge based on knowledge accumulated and recorded from his past. Humans are the only creatures who can take advantage of knowledge accumulated over centuries. There are three paths of human knowledge. Collecting knowledge, transferring knowledge to the next generation, increasing knowledge. This fact is especially important in research because the available knowledge plays an active role in coming closer to reality. On a practical basis, all human knowledge is stored in books and journals. Every generation of humans acquires that accumulated knowledge and tries to develop it continuously by thinking, refining it or making complete or partial changes.

For the success of any research work, it is necessary that the researcher uses the library. He should first familiarize himself with as many available books, texts, journals related to his problem as possible and with satisfactory details of research collected in the past years, so that it is known. On which path or which aspect of the problem has been worked upon? Which research technique was used in it? And which aspect of the problem is such that it has not been studied? On practical basis, man keeps trying to move forward towards continuous development by acquiring, thinking, refining, or making complete or partial changes to the accumulated knowledge. There are three aspects of human knowledge. Collecting knowledge, passing it on to each other, and increasing knowledge. To have a special place in the development of any subject, the researcher should be well aware of the complete principles. By surveying the related literature, the researcher can decide whether the work worth considering has already been done on the subjects related to the research proposed by him or not.

According to the rule of Dr. C.V. Raman, “Any written description related to research cannot be considered appropriate unless that description has the basis of literature related to that research.” Research, in any field, aims to obtain as much information as possible in the concerned field. It is because of this nature of human beings that a continuous stream of knowledge has flowed. For centuries, a sequence of it has been going on. This process of knowledge is endless as long as human beings are alive. His thirst for knowledge never ends. What is it, how is it, or should it be? Ignorant of these questions, human life is always curious. This inquisitive nature of his has always given a new form to the knowledge of tomorrow.

2.2 RESEARCH RELATED TO THE STUDY

The researcher studied the previous research works related to educational contribution, the details of which are as follows-.

- 1. Aabi Shadab (2009) made a research on “Jakir Husain Evam Dr A P J Abdul Kalam Ke Shaikshik Vicharo ka Tulnatmak Adhyayan.” He found that—

- In the thoughts of both, a mixture of tradition and modernity is seen.
- According to both Zakir Sahab and Kalam Sahab, education is the all-round development of the best in children. Educationists also accept this effort of both thinkers.
- The thoughts of both are very relevant to discipline. Both thinkers discuss internal, constructive and effective discipline. They are in favour of eliminating corporal punishment. Even in the present time, they are in favour of internal constructive and effective discipline.

- In the curriculum, both these thinkers have emphasized correlation, coordination, integration and action.

2. Kiran Singh (2008) studied Rabindranath Tagore's educational philosophy and its relevance in Indian education and found that---

- Rabindranath Tagore has taken education in a broad sense. He believes that education helps in the physical, intellectual and moral development of a person.
- Tagore also wanted to establish his school away from the noise of the city, in a peaceful environment and in the picturesque lap of nature. Where students and teachers could engage in the pursuit of education.

- Tagore wanted that God should be the symbol of human qualities and the ultimate truth should be tested on the touchstone of humanity. The reality of man is humanity.
- The feeling of universalism in the child, there is talk of globalization, the means of communication are increasing. The child should also be encouraged to love the country and abroad.

3. Anant Bahadur Singh (2008) did a comparative study of the educational thoughts of Rabindranath Tagore and Mahatma Gandhi in the special context of value education and found that—

- Rabindranath Tagore was not only a high-class poet, singer, musician, dramatist, actor, novelist, essay writer, educationist, philosopher, humanist and nationalist of our country, but he was also a staunch internationalist. He was a true world citizen whose nationalism was by his vast internationalism.
- Writing about him, R. Srinivasa Iyengar writes that Tagore occupies a unique place among the world's greatest educationists because he thought or derived an educational philosophy and achieved a great degree of success in translating his philosophy into action.

- Dr. Surendranath Das Gupta has written about Rabindranath Tagore that his talent was unique and incomparable and nowhere else is this image found related to tireless hard work, as everyone has said about him. His personality presents such a picture before us which is unique in human history. Maulana Abdul Kalam Azad had said that it is Gurudev's achievement that he filled this void with his efforts. This is a reference to Shanti Niketan.
- Professor Humayun Kabir says that Tagore has brought about a revolution in the ideas of education without breaking the tradition, this clearly shows what progress and change Tagore has brought about in Indian education.

4. Ramniwas Verma (2005) did research work on the topic “Bhartiya jeevan mulya aadharit Shiksha vyavastha ke sandrbh mein Swami Shivanand ji ke shaikshik vicharon ki prasangikta”. In his study, he found that—

- Indian culture is basically a life value-based way of life which essentially directs the Indian public mind towards the value systems. These value systems are the source of inspiration for the Indian life system and have always been leading it towards achieving excellent achievements and building a unique human system. Indian culture, even in its simplest sense, presents such a unique example of application and appropriation of life values in public life which gives impetus to Indian life and works to create new Indian life values by inspiring and developing the components of human creativity.

- From the point of view of cultural values, Indian life values can be considered to have emerged from various fields of expertise. These fields of expertise provide the rationale for Indian life values.

5. Renu Singh (2008) did research work on Chhatrapati Shahu Ji Maharaj's educational contribution, especially in the educational upliftment of Dalits in India and found that—

- Many qualities of education that are called progressive in modern times are present in Shahu Ji's educational ideas. Freedom, activity, feeling, concentration, thinking, socialization, creativity, expression, personality, respect, all-around development, the respectable position of teacher, etc. are all the elements in it, which are relevant, useful, and meaningful for education and establish him as the highest educationist.

- The principles of education laid down by this great educational philosopher are not only applicable to our country and this era but

- By adopting his educational ideas in modern education, India's aimless education system can be guided.

- The educational contribution of missionaries will always be remembered in Indian history. Although the missionaries did not run schools out of pure altruism, their main objective was to propagate Christianity. Still, these people made some important work will be done in the school? The common people did not understand. Missionaries first considered school as the centre of universal education and laid the foundation of formal education in India. Thus, seeing the formal program made by the missionaries for schools, Indians of the present time adopted the program of formal education by learning from their education system.

- Before the arrival of the missionaries, indigenous education was prevalent in India. The curriculum of indigenous education was very narrow and inadequate. The poverty of the country was the main reason for the decline of indigenous education. Most of the people of the country were poor and could not pay even the nominal fees of their children. After the decline of indigenous education, European races entered and along with them European missionaries also came. They chose education as their medium for propagating religion and opened many primary schools. The initial efforts of primary education were made by the missionaries. They aimed to arrange for the education of the children of their colony and to propagate Christianity through education.

7. Babulal Tiwari (1997) critically studied the educational ideas of Pandit Deendayal Upadhyaya in the current Indian national environment and found that—

- Pandit Deendayal ji was a saint politician. Education, culture and religion are his main concepts. He believed that refinement of public opinion is essential for democracy, was against economics-controlled industry and was in favour of religion-controlled economics. He believed that the power to control society is not in politics but in culture, that is why 'culture' became his favourite subject. Hence, he was less of a leader and more of a cultural and educational worker. His focus was more on ideological thinking to increase organisational strength than on politics.

- Deendayal Upadhyaya considered all the ideologies of the West to be incomplete, one-sided and reactionary. He considered the Western depiction of man as a creature with needs of food, clothing and shelter as inconsistent and considered the term 'political animal', 'social animal' or economic animal as one-sided. He believed that Dharma, Artha, Kama and Moksha are the broad and collective needs of human beings. Our political, economic and social ideologies should be developed according to these four Purusharthas. His 'Integral Humanism' emerged from this thought.

8. Dr. Shashikant Sharma (2007) studied the educational thinking of Giju Bhai Badheka and its relevance in the modern Indian child-education scenario and found that—

- [illegible]

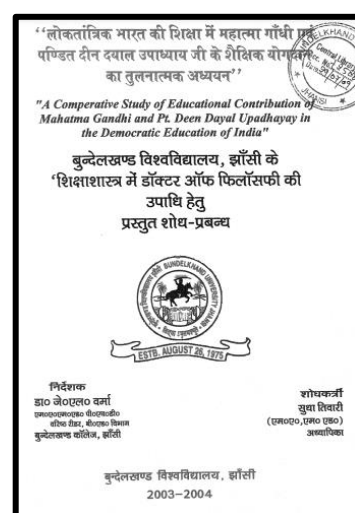

- Giju Bhai says that a man can increase the strength of the body, can achieve the splendor of intellect, but even if a man spends his entire life in achieving purity of soul, success will still remain far away. This development is so difficult and so subtle that it cannot be done merely by telling stories or preaching. He says He says that a person who expects truth from others after being taught the lesson of truth is either a fool, ignorant or a hypocrite. In this way, Giju Bhai proves the futility of moral teaching in a didactic way. He says that the most dangerous germs of immorality seem to have entered the veins of those who sing the song of moral teaching. Since they are afraid of the immorality within themselves, they are not capable of fighting it, so they are fighting to remove it from the world. He says that moral teaching corrupts man from the freedom of soul. Man himself follows immorality but wants that the child should become moral, this is never possible.

- Giju Bhai strongly supports giving nature education to the child. He said that by keeping our child away from nature, will we make him a god or a demon? In Giju Bhai's view, the education given by nature is the best social education. With this education, his moral development becomes natural and it remains permanent as a strong base of religious development. The root of self-learning is also contained in nature teaching. Giju Bhai says that nature's teaching nourishes patience and faith. Nature is the first nurse of man's soul and body. Therefore, he should fill his life with the contributions of nature right from childhood. He should acquire the elements of his spiritual development from nature itself.

9. Sudha Tiwari (2009) did a comparative study on the educational contribution of Mahatma Gandhi and Pandit Deen Dayal Upadhyaya in the education of democratic India and found that—

- To make the Indian people who were ignorant of their dignified culture, ignorant of foreign rule for centuries, the thoughts of Indian thinkers had to work according to their circumstances, instead of expressing agreement or disagreement with the western thinkers.

Therefore, it is enough to say that they determined the form of education according to their field and their work. Indian thinkers did not have the spirit of competition, rather to search for the true values of life. The aim of their education was to awaken and remember those who have been buried in the abyss of time.

- Some people are made historical by historical events, while some people create history themselves. Mahatma Gandhi himself was such a man who, through his He created history by paving his own path with the qualities, virtues and great deeds of his mind, heart and brain. As a national leader, he created a new India with his impressive personality and influenced the entire world as a thinker of international repute.
- Mahatma Gandhi's thoughts are completely consistent with the changing scientific and industrial age. If we can adopt his teachings and philosophical thoughts, then we can create 'Ram Rajya' and a new golden age.

10. Shashi Mishra (2002) did " a comparative study on the educational ideas of socialist thinkers" and found that—

- From the Indian point of view, philosophy and life have been so closely connected that no difference was seen between them. In ancient times, the field of philosophy was the field of the entire life. Maharishis used to see the truth by doing penance and applied it in life and imparted the teachings of their practical experience to others.

- The goal before Indian philosophers was the total destruction of sorrows and the attainment of complete happiness or salvation. They had discovered the path to achieve it from their point of view, so despite some differences between them, there is similarity on some important questions. Mr. Satish Chandra Chattopadhyay and Virendra Mohandatt have described the similarity in moral and spiritual points.
- The objective of all the philosophies of India has been the means of Purusharth.
- Philosophy originates from spiritual dissatisfaction, but due to spiritual attitude, hope keeps flowing in it.

2.3 CONCLUSION

The researcher found that in the previous research, comparative study of the educational thoughts of Dr. Zakir Hussain and Dr. A.P.J. Abdul Kalam, a study of the relevance of the educational contribution of Rabindranath Tagore in the current context, a comparative study of the educational thoughts of Rabindranath Tagore and Mahatma Gandhi with special reference to value education, relevance of the educational thoughts of Swami Shivanand Ji in the context of Indian life value based education system, study of the educational contribution of Chhatrapati Shahu Ji Maharaj in India, especially in the educational upliftment of Dalits, missionary education in India: contribution and usefulness in the present time, critical study of the educational thoughts of Pandit Deen Dayal Upadhyaya in the current Indian national environment, study of the educational thinking of Giju Bhai Badheka and its relevance in the modern Indian child education scenario, comparative study of the educational contribution of Mahatma Gandhi and Pandit Deen Dayal Upadhyaya in the education of democratic India and comparative study of the educational thoughts of socialist thinkers were done. However, no research work has been done on the educational contribution of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta Ji till now. Hence the researcher decided to do a small research work on his contribution towards the society.

3.7 PEOPLE’S PERSPECTIVE ON DR. BRAJESH KUMAR GUPTA

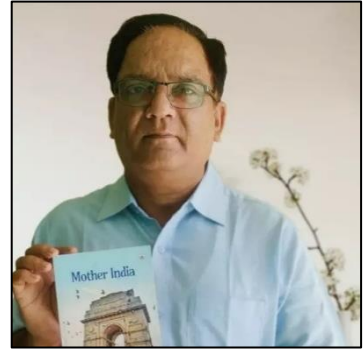

He is an internationally renowned poet, whose words touch hearts worldwide. He actively engages with various literary communities, building bridges between different cultures through his poetry. His social connections enrich the literary world, making him a beloved figure among fellow poets and readers.

According to Dr. Rajesh Kumar Sinha,
“Among modern Indian English writers, the name of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta Mewadev’ is globally recognized. He is basically a poet of international fame. But, he has also written short stories and is planning to write novels in the future. He is a man with a perfect pen between his fingers. His mission is to serve literature and enrich it more and more with his creative write-ups.”

(The Literary World Of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta “Mewadev,” 2021, p. 105)

According to Arbind Kumar Choudhary,
 “His poetic flavour that runs wild like the water of the Ganga River perfumes the poetic passage for its pinnacle in English poetry in India. The simplicity he uses strikes the verses-suitors, the poetic ingredients he uses to make many a verse-suitor, the spiritual message he elicits brings to light the poetic pigments and the mythology he incorporates makes him a glittering poet from the literary orbit of India. His intense love for natural iridescence makes him a poet of the Romantic tradition of versification while the focus on burning issuesinhumanity, immorality, criminality, enmity and many others make him a poet of the Ezekienean tradition of versification in Indian English poetry.

(Articulate Verses of Brajesh for Feelings, 2018, p. NA)

According to Prof. Dr. Jeton Kelmendi, Belgium, “Brajesh does not write like someone who takes care in the writing for such selected category, but he writes for all categories, of course, people who are more intellectuals. If I write a critic, I can write a long text, commenting on some phrases and analyzing them, but that is not my attitude, because the ideas are to analyze by readers. By me is to say short some focusing theme and style of the author, for what I suggest to be read this author.”

(Treatment and glorification of love and sex in the fictional world of D.H. Lawrence, 2019, p. NA)

LITERARY CONTRIBUTION OF 'MEWADEV'

Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta, known by his pen name "Mewadev," is a prolific author and editor, having penned more than 10 books and edited various books and journals. His scholarly contributions include approximately 50 chapters in various national and international publications, focusing on literature and gender issues. He has also presented around 75 research papers, enriching the literary landscape with his profound insights and expertise.

4.1 ANTHOLOGIES PUBLISHED BY 'Dr. MEWADEV'4.1.1 The Rain

Dr. Mewadev's inaugural book is a profound exploration of the intricate philosophies of love, life, emotions, and harmony. This anthology contains 44 poems written by Mewadev during year 2010 to 2016.

This seminal work introduces readers to a wide array of Mewadev's literary frameworks, each offering a unique perspective on the myriad facets of existence. Through his eloquent prose and insightful reflections, Dr. Mewadev guides us on a journey to comprehend the deeper meaning of every aspect of life, providing clarity and wisdom that resonate on a universal level. This book is not merely a collection of writings; it is a guide to understanding the fundamental truths of our experiences and emotions.

The Rain

*The rain, let us go you and I
I feel her slowly and now in happier air,
You give me a gulp of water, want to try,
Rarely comes a thought to make it pleasure
Tells me it shall take away all consciousness
And waive all claims to bliss, and try to bear
With the object of giving direction to the crisis
The cold touches of water snap up the rope of desire,
Now disappears the glimmering landscape on the sight
May I have done, you get no more of me,
Some perishable monument still erected night,
Time for you and time for me.
Who most has suffered, takes dejectedly
I was happy she went too peacefully.*

(The Rain, 2016, p. 13)

In the above lines the poet seeks to grasp the essence of life, capturing a beautiful image of rain. This natural symphony evokes a profound melancholy within the poet's heart, weaving a tapestry of sorrow and introspection. This book contains many other poems like above one which connects to the nature.

Educational relevance:

WAY OF HOPE

Where is this world going on?

Forget our culture and emotions

It's not right way to forward

There is nothing only senseless.

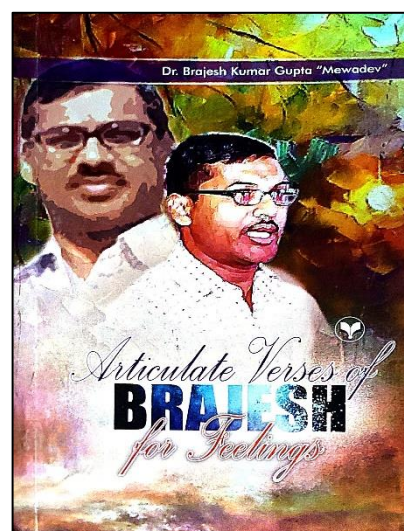

(The Rain, 2016, p. 39)

The above lines highlight the negligence our culture and attempt to show how wrong and irrational this is. In simpler terms, they are emphasizing the importance of preserving and respecting our cultural heritage. Ignoring or dismissing it is not only unjust but also lacks logical reasoning. What specific aspect of our culture were you thinking about?

4.1.2 Articulate Verses of Brajesh for Feelings

The poetic presentation in this book is a rich and comprehensive compendium of feelings, brilliantly expressed through a variety of lyrical styles. There are 136 poems like above are published in this anthology.

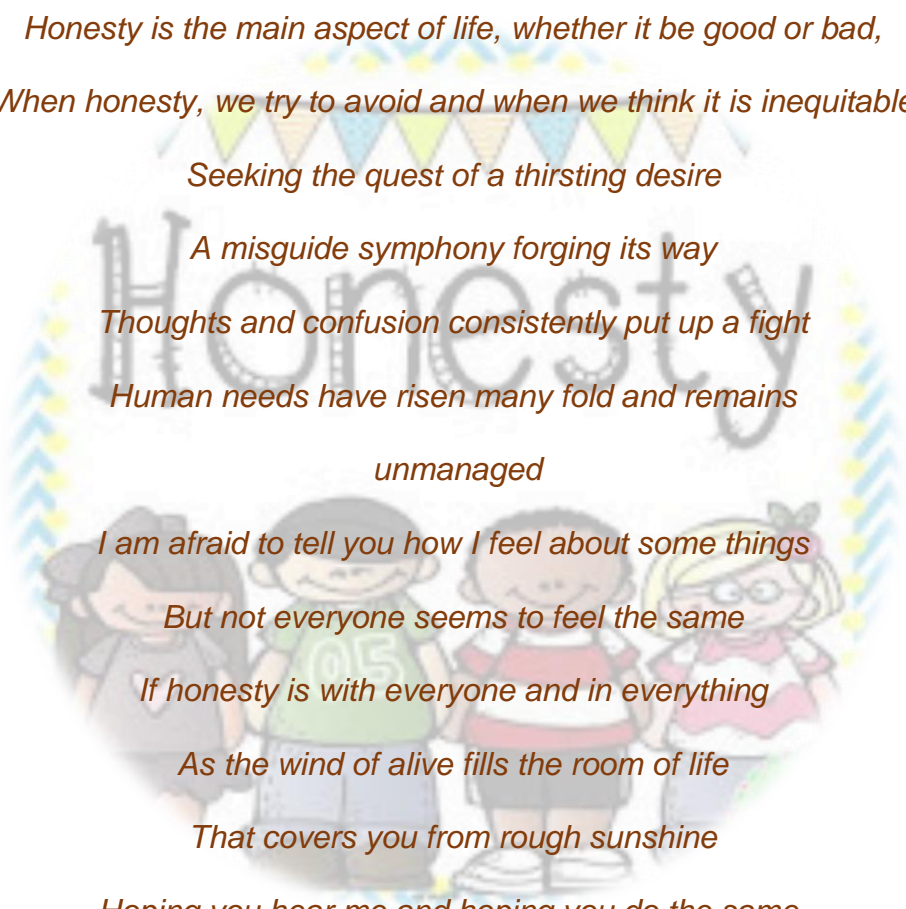

Each poem showcases the poet's creative skills, capturing the natural landscapes of the mind in vivid detail. This collection stands apart from others by striving to include the finest original pieces that epitomize expressive beauty and soulful emotion. Through these poetic works, readers are invited to explore the depths of the human experience, gaining insight and understanding of life's many facets. The author's meticulous effort to curate and present each piece in its most authentic form highlights the unique charm and profound impact of the collection, making it a truly remarkable and unforgettable read.

Educational relevance:

WAY OF HONESTY

*Honesty is the main aspect of life, whether it be good or bad,
When honesty, we try to avoid and when we think it is inequitable
Seeking the quest of a thirsting desire
A misguide symphony forging its way
Thoughts and confusion consistently put up a fight
Human needs have risen many fold and remains unmanaged
I am afraid to tell you how I feel about some things
But not everyone seems to feel the same
If honesty is with everyone and in everything
As the wind of alive fills the room of life
That covers you from rough sunshine
Hoping you hear me and hoping you do the same.*

(Articulate Verses of Brajesh for Feelings, 2018, p. 43.)

This poem emphasizes the importance of honesty in life, despite its challenges. It discusses how avoiding honesty can lead to confusion and conflicts. The core message remains that honesty is fundamental in all aspects of life, acting like a protective force, much like the wind that shields us from harsh sunlight. This poem is absolutely worthy of inclusion in the curriculum of primary and secondary classes.

Reflecting on some of the notable poems from the book:

'My Fellow Poet' explores the mutual admiration and reverence between poets, capturing the subtle moments of angst that linger in memory.

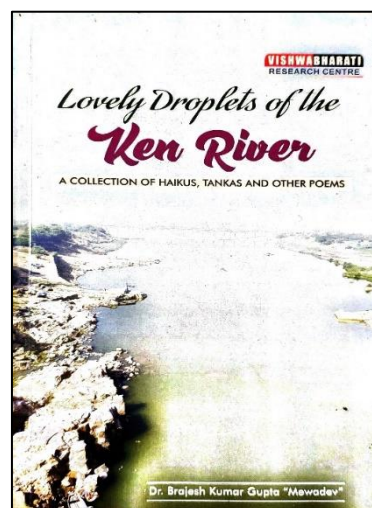

'Finding Smile' delves into the importance of a smile and its priceless value in every moment of life.

'Feelings of Dance for Us' is a poignant poem about the lifelong quest and the essence of dancing with your soulmate through this journey.

4.1.3 Lovely Droplets of the Ken River

"Lively Droplets of the Ken River" by Dr. Brajesh Gupta is a treasure trove of poetry, elegantly crafted with Haikus and Tankas.

Haiku is a traditional form of Japanese poetry that captures a moment in time, often focusing on nature, with a simple yet profound structure. Typically, a Haiku consists of three lines with a syllable pattern of 5-7-5.

An example Haiku from this book:

Everything in touch

Hop on log and lily pads

With no leaves to blow.

Tanka, like Haiku, is also a traditional form of Japanese poetry, but it is longer and provides a bit more room for expression. Tanka poems consist of five lines with a syllable pattern of 5-7-5-7-7, making a total of 31 syllables. This form allows for a more elaborate depiction of emotions and scenes, often delving deeper into personal feelings and experiences.

An example Tanka from this book:

Lost inside his eyes

Tenderly our lips touch

Like a gold-winged butterfly

Listen, and recall our nights

Snowflakes little drop of Faith.

Educational relevance:

This anthology transports readers to a celestial realm, immersing them in a state of bliss. The themes are richly woven with deep emotional connections to the poet, offering a thrilling experience.

OUR FREEDOM

...There is no humanity but we free

There is no more food for needy but we free

There are no more needful things for needy but we free

There is no more employment for unemployed but we free...

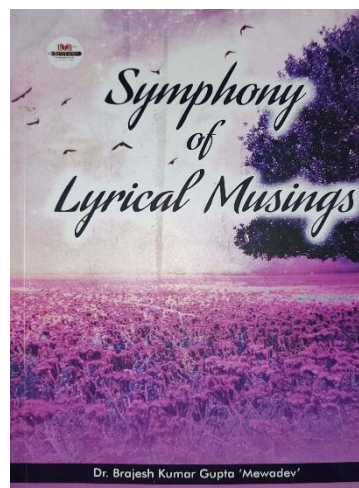

(Lovely droplets of Ken River, 2020, p. 77)

The poem "Our Freedom" criticizes the irony of claiming freedom in a society plagued by lack of humanity, food, necessities, and jobs, amidst rampant corruption and anarchy. Yet, there's a hint of hope for true freedom and positive change.

4.1.4 Symphony of Lyrical Musings

The collection, 'Symphony of Lyrical Musings,' is a treasure trove of 62 evocative and inspiring poems. The simplicity of his verse is both astonishing and captivating, making it accessible to readers from all walks of life. This wonderful anthology beautifully captures the spectrum of human emotions, allowing everyone to savor and connect with the poetry on a deep level.

Educational Relevance:

In his poem 'Creative Folks for Culture', the poet eloquently celebrates the beauty and strength and beauty of our Indian cultural diversity.

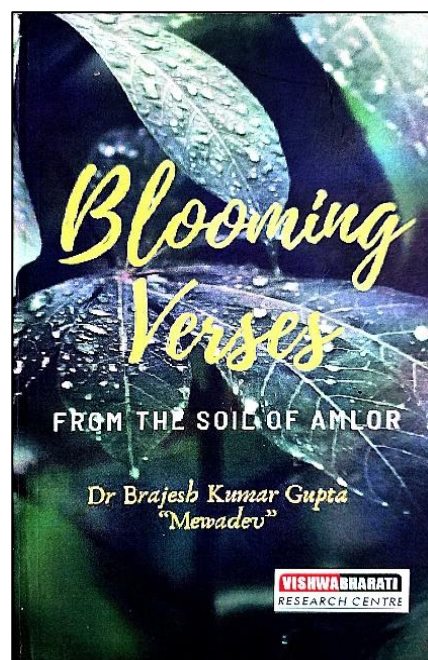

*Cultural differences unite us
Not divide us for violence and cruelty
But that shouldn't make us fewer humans than the others
Life would be boring without diversity
Culture is all around us, the values that we hold Astonishment over it & over the fact that this happens, Unite the paradigm's hegemony....*

(Symphony of lyrical musings, 2021, p. 31)

4.1.5 Blooming Verses from the Soil of Amlor

"Blooming Verses from The Soil of Amlor," a captivating collection of 137 poems by Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta "Mewadev," beautifully stirs the soul. With a lucid style, it captures the poet's diverse interests, often drawing from his personal life experiences.

This free-verse collection effortlessly captivates readers, vividly portraying the poet's profound love for nature, his native soil, and its people. His affection for various birds is artfully depicted, especially in the poem "Joy," where his admiration for peacocks gracing his rooftop shines through. The enchanting colours of the peacock captivate him deeply, adding a touch of magic to his poetic expressions.

His profound connection with Mother Earth is beautifully expressed in the poem "Earth is a Guide". His deep affection for nature is vividly depicted in poems such as "Butterfly: Wings of Delight", "Lovely Scene", "Lilies in the Pond", and "My Blessed Bird". His unwavering optimism shines through in "Every Time We Can", "The Dream of Tomorrow", and the final poem, "Dream". Additionally, his frustration with inhuman behaviour and callousness is powerfully conveyed in his poem "An Attention for Inhumanity".

Educational Relevance:

WE ALL NEED SOMETHING

Illuminating straight into the depths of our fears

Our work is broken down, as we focus on each task

A failure to understand the pattern of working

We will start with the hardworking and the brave

Hard work transforms dreams into reality

Learning from your past is way better than just forgetting it

Together right now we take our last stand We are improving this world Earth.

(Blooming verses from the soil of Amlor, 2020, p. 166)

These lines from a poem “We all Need Something” inspires students by showing them that hard work and bravery aren't just abstract concepts—they're practical steps towards achieving their goals.

4.2 COLLECTION OF SHORT STORIES

Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta 'Mewadev' is primarily known for his poetic contributions, but he also excels in crafting heart-touching stories. His storytelling prowess is evident in these collections of his captivating tales-

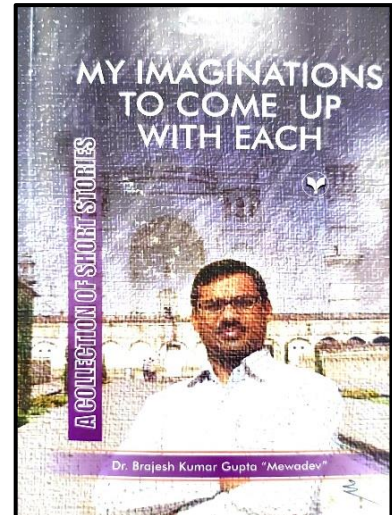

4.2.1 My Imaginations to Come Up With Each

In this book, he takes us into the sweet canopy of love with genuine joy emanating and flowing as lovers find their special someone who will complete their lives. Love indeed is the most powerful force that shapes or reshapes us as human beings, making the world go round and giving meaning to our existence. Embedded within the lines of these stories is the utmost desire to achieve the ultimate purpose of our every breath.

The book contains seven short stories, each with a unique theme. All the stories are either heart-touching or thought-provoking. The very first story, titled "MY LAST BREATH FOR HER" is full of human emotions, making it universally relatable.

The second story, "SHE CAME INTO MY LIFE", explores a love triangle where the protagonist learns that true love often requires sacrifice and selflessness rather than possessiveness.

In "MR. FIRST'S NEW LIFE", we meet a 35-year-old teacher named First Dev, whose flirtatious nature leads him to face deception, ultimately teaching him valuable life lessons. The fourth story, "LOVE IS WORSHIP", revisits Radha and Sikandar, characters who have appeared earlier in the collection, and resolves their conflicts on a happy note. "ROMANCE OF HEART DWELLERS" brings together Mahi and Pratham, whose romantic journey captivates readers with its intensity, concluding with a tender hug and kiss. The story "MY SOULMATE'S MURDER" delves into the passionate moments between Radha and Sikandar, reaching the pinnacle of eroticism but ending tragically with Radha's murder, leaving readers in a state of melancholy.

The final story, "MAKE FUN OF YOURSELF," humorously portrays the protagonist's embarrassment when a video of him farting in bed is shared in a WhatsApp group, leading to laughter at his office. Eventually, he learns to accept and laugh at himself, turning an awkward situation into a lesson in self-acceptance.

This collection of short stories by Dr. B. K. Gupta 'Mewadev' offers an entertaining and insightful read, exploring the complexities of human emotions and relationships through a variety of compelling narratives.

4.2.2 हम भी बड़े होंगे (translation)

This is Hindi translation of an English short story collection for children “How the Twins Grew Up” which is originally written by Serbian Writer Milutin Durickovic.

These biographical tales of twin brothers unfold within their family circle, at school, home, and in their backyard. Crafted as a realistic prose narrative, they brim with humour, unexpected dramatic twists, and sharp punch lines. Each story is short and concise, packed with effective endings and scenarios that evoke laughter, caricature, and a touch of absurdity.

4.2.3 The Forest of Cactus (Translation)

This is also a Translation of Hindi story collection- “कैक्टस के जंगल” originally Written by Suresh Babu Mishra.

The central theme of these twenty stories is their deep "engagement" or "concern." The term "concern" is vast and covers both rural and urban societies. Suresh Babu Mishra has the rare ability to craft urban settings with meticulous detail in his literature, while also delving deeply into the rural environment with equal intensity. His stories reflect the nuances and intricacies of both worlds, revealing a profound understanding and connection to the diverse facets of society. Through these narratives, Mishra captures the essence of human experiences, bridging the gap between city life and village existence, and highlighting the universal themes that bind us all.

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTIONS

5.1 CONCLUSION

The following conclusions have been obtained from the research work “Educational and Literary Contribution of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta ‘Mewadev’” presented by the researcher—

- Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta 'Mewadev', hailing from a modest middle-class family, received his early education in various schools, often under typical circumstances.
- The joyful and religious atmosphere of his home is evidently reflected in his writings.
- Due to family issues, he had to pause his 12th-grade studies for a year, but with dedication and perseverance, he resumed and passed with flying colors the following year.
- Throughout his life, Dr. Gupta has been known for his punctuality and discipline, which has significantly contributed to his continuous progress.
- Despite belonging to a highly underdeveloped region, he embraced English as his primary language for writing.
- He has served as an English lecturer in several prestigious institutions such as Atarra Post Graduate College, Atarra; Eklavya Mahavidyalaya, Banda; Raja Devi Degree College, Banda; and S.K. Mahavidyalaya, Mahoba, imparting modern and cultural education in English, a language often perceived as challenging in these regions.

- Currently, Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta is rendering his services as the Principal of S.K. Mahavidyalaya, Jaitpur, Mahoba, demonstrating exemplary leadership and efficiently managing the entire college.
- His journey underscores the power of dedication, resilience, and a passion for learning and teaching.
- Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta 'Mewadev' has made significant strides in the literary world, authoring 10 books that span poetry collections, short story anthologies, and translations in various languages. His free-verse poetry, numbering in the hundreds, has been compiled into several collections, where his vivid depictions of love and nature truly shine.
- Harnessing the power of social media positively, he has joined several international literary circles, gaining global recognition for both his work and himself. His poetic prowess has earned him the prestigious role of Secretary-General at The World Union of Poets.
- Dr. Gupta's contributions have not gone unnoticed, as evidenced by numerous awards both in India and internationally. Notable among these are the The Kabir Kohinoor Award 2024 presented by President Droupadi Murmu, Uttar Pradesh Gaurav Samman 2019, and The Apollon Sirmeinsis Award 2013 from the Writers Association of Serbia.

- In his efforts to promote literature and inspire the next generation of writers, Dr. Gupta founded 'Pratham Trust' and The Contemporary Literary Society of Amlor, Banda. These organizations are dedicated to publishing various literary works and providing a platform for emerging writers and poets to reach a wider audience.
- Regarding the status of the English language, Dr. Gupta opines that while it is well-established at the national and state levels, it still faces significant challenges in regions like Bundelkhand and similar areas.
- He has strongly opposed the rote learning system for English adopted by current teachers. He believes that English is a language that cannot be learned through memorization alone. Instead, it should be taught through proper grammar and a systematic method. According to Dr. Gupta, true mastery of the English language comes from understanding and learning it through grammar and structured teaching methods.
- Dr. Gupta is a conscious and sensitive poet towards social and environmental concerns. His heart resides in simplicity, far from deceit and pretense. His poems reflect his nature.
- He emphasizes that it is essential for students to be of good character. He believes that bookish knowledge is useful, but students' education should also build character, enhance mental strength, expand intellect, and enable them to stand on their own feet.
- His wife, Mrs. Varsha Gupta, is not only a skilled homemaker but also a successful poet and writer. His 9-year-old son, Pratham Dev Gupta, has also started writing poetry. This indicates that the entire atmosphere of their family is literature lover.

- Dr. Gupta regularly participates in poets' conferences and gatherings organized both in India and abroad, continually spreading the beauty of his poetry.

5.2 EDUCATIONAL IMPLICATIONS

Through a comprehensive study of the research dissertation titled "Educational and Literary Contribution of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta 'Mewadev'", the following educational implications have emerged—

- From the life of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta Ji, we draw the profound inspiration that, regardless of the obstacles, hardships, and poverty that life may present, one can achieve the pinnacle of higher education through dedication, hard work, and unwavering determination.
- Dr. Gupta's career journey teaches us that upon completing our educational path, we should embrace any employment opportunity, no matter how small or temporary it may seem, and strive for continuous advancement within it. Eventually, success is bound to follow.
- His life exemplifies that perseverance and commitment can transcend all adversities, leading to ultimate triumph.
- The environment at home profoundly impacts a student's mind and character. Thus, it is essential for the home atmosphere to be filled with religious, spiritual, and cultural vibes, inspiring students to enhance their lives positively.

- Utilizing modern technology, such as social media, appropriately and in the right direction is crucial for personal and societal development.
- We must prioritize women's education, as the notion of confining them to household chores is narrow-minded. Women should be given equal opportunities for higher education as men. Only then can we establish an ideal society in the truest sense, where women can stand shoulder to shoulder with men in achieving goals.
- As social beings, individuals should strive to connect and collaborate with various social institutions. It is vital for good people to engage with different organizations, as their involvement drives progress, leading society towards advancement and prosperity.

5.3 EDUCATIONAL USEFULLNESS

Based on the insightful conclusions drawn from the research work on Educational and Literary Contribution of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta 'Mewadev', we can assert that this study holds immense value, not just in the realm of education but across various fields. In today's social landscape, where human values and ancient Indian culture are often relegated to books, students are increasingly losing touch with their virtues and morals due to an overwhelming influence of materialism and blind adoption of Western culture.

In such transformative times, this concise research will prove pivotal in instilling fundamental values, ethics, and morality in students. The combination of education and literature paves the way for all avenues of progress to be clearly visible and accessible. Dr. Gupta strongly believes that through the harmonious integration of spirituality and cultural coherence, 21st-century education will establish new paradigms, ensuring that human values transcend beyond textbooks and are ingrained within children as inherent virtues.

The research work positions education and literature as two facets of the same coin. By promoting ancient Indian culture alongside modern education infused with traditional teachings, we can create a healthy, educated society, nurturing the development of ideal future citizens. This harmonious blend is essential for fostering a society that cherishes its cultural roots while embracing modern advancements.

5.4 SUGGESTIONS BASED ON THIS STUDY

In this research, after an in-depth analysis of Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta's contributions to the field of education, it was concluded that the objective of any research should be to foster meaningful improvements. Based on this study, the following suggestions are presented—

- In schools, teachers should possess knowledge of their subjects as well as an understanding of Indian culture and environmental awareness.

- English should be embraced as a global language rather than a symbol of status, and its profound knowledge should be acquired instead of rote learning.
- Students should be encouraged to read books related to various poems and stories in schools.
- Teachers should organize poetry conferences and literary gatherings for students from time to time to enhance their inherent writing abilities.
- Parents should create a cheerful and spiritually enriched home environment to ensure the child's mental well-being and proper development.
- Students should avoid wasting time on frivolous activities on mobile phones and the internet and instead engage in valuable activities like writing and reading books.
- students should use social media not just for passing time but to connect with individuals and institutions that contribute to their personality and skill development.
- Students should pursue careers in any field they choose, but they should never abandon their passions. No matter how busy they are, they should always make time for what they love.
- Students should always surround themselves with friends who support their goals and help them achieve their dreams, avoiding those who waste their time or encourage bad habits.
- Students should understand the value of time and always adhere to discipline, for only then can they benefit themselves and society.

- Dedication is essential in any endeavor, so whatever they do, they should do it with full commitment to achieve success.
- While everyone works for their own benefit, one should strive to undertake tasks that uplift not only themselves but others as well.

5.5 RECOMENDATIONS FOR FURTHER RESEARCH

- Future research could delve into the values embedded in Mewadev's poems.
- Other poets from the Bundelkhand region could be included in forthcoming studies.
- Comparative analysis between Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta's educational contributions and those of other poets can also be a focus.
- While the present study centers on the renowned English poet Dr. Brajesh Kumar Gupta's educational contributions, future research could encompass poets from languages beyond English, offering a broader scope and deeper insights.

EDUCATIONAL AND LITERARY
CONTRIBUTION OF DR. BRAJESH KUMAR
GUPTA 'MEWADEV'

The rain, let us go you and I
I feel her slowly and now in happier air,
You give me a gulp of water, want to try,
Rarely comes a thought to make it pleasure
